

EMPEROR ADDRESSES GERMAN REICHSSTAG

NEW LEGISLATURE OF GERMAN EMPIRE OFFICIALLY OPENED BY EMPEROR WILLIAM.

FOR CONTINUED POWER

Urges Co-operation of Reichstag in Maintaining Strength as a World Power.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Berlin, Feb. 7.—Emperor William in person at noon today opened the 13th Reichstag which has assembled since the foundation of the German Empire. After greeting the members of the imperial parliament in the name of the governments of the confederated states of the empire, Emperor William in his speech from the throne affirmed his desire to augment the welfare of all classes of the people of Germany and maintain the strength and prestige of the nation.

He appealed to the new parliament for its co-operation in this work and then expressed the hope that by a strict adherence to the financial policy now in force the imperial finances would soon be placed on a fairly sound basis.

Commercial Treaties. The emperor then referred to the new commercial treaties about to be entered into between Germany and other countries and announced the imperial government in negotiating them would adhere to the old basis of its tariff policy under which trade in agriculture and industry prospered so well.

Then came the part of the emperor's speech for which the members of the Reichstag were waiting with the utmost eagerness—that part in which he made reference to the international situation and to the expected increase in the army and navy. There was no partial disappointment, however, as the emperor merely announced the measure in a general way and did not give any details.

National Protection. He then said in part: "For the success of our work of peace at home and over seas the Empire must remain powerful enough to defend at all times its national honor and its possessions as well as its just interest in the world.

"It is therefore, my constant duty and care to maintain and strengthen both on land and on sea the defensive power of the German people which does not lack young men capable of bearing arms. Measures with this end in view are in preparation and will be submitted to you together with proposals covering the additional cost. In helping this important work, gentlemen, you will be greatly serving the fatherland."

"In concluding our agreement with France we have given new proofs of our readiness to settle international difficulties amicably whenever such a course is consistent with the dignity and interest of Germany."

MASKED ROBBERS IN BOLD KIDNAP THAT BROUGHT RESULTS

Rock Island Train Was Victim of Clever Work by Gang That Escaped With Booty.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 7.—Five men plundered the mail and express cars of the Rock Island Train No. 43 near Hurler, Ark., early today and made away with their booty long before an alarm was spread.

The hold up was so cleverly executed that none of the train employees could offer resistance and few of the passengers knew anything about what had happened until they awoke to find their train stalled.

The value of the plundered goods has not been determined. They consisted of the postal car, blow open the Wells Fargo Express Co.'s safe apparently overlooking nothing that might aid to their profit.

This was the second kidnap near Hurler within the last four months. The train left Memphis about midnight. After it cleared the western terminus of the Mississippi River bridge it was boarded by two masked men.

They climbed over the tender, covered the engine crew with guns and ordered the train halted. The engine was halted, gagged and then kicked off into a ditch. The fireman ran the train on several miles until it was skidded to halt at a campsite along the track where three other bandits waited.

Here the baggage and mail cars were detached from the passenger coaches and before any of the train crew knew what had happened the locomotive with its light load was hurrying farther into the country.

While one of the bandits held a gun over the fireman the remaining four of the band climbed into the express and mail coaches and covered the messengers and cook. The engine with the two cars proceeded to a point a mile east of Hurler, Ark., then the robbers ransacked the postal car, blew open the safe, gathered their plunder and fled.

A switch engine was manned by a posse but long before they reached the holdup scene, the robbers had vanished.

Took Some Money. Memphis, Feb. 7.—At noon today it was reported money—consisting of a bank in Oklahoma, estimated at between $10,000 and $25,000, had been taken from the express car by the robbers. No arrests had been reported up to noon.

Denies Report. Chicago, Feb. 7.—Advisers were received here today by officials of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway company that nothing was taken from the train by the robbers except one pouch of registered mail.

UNIVERSITY READY TO AID THE STATE

President Van Hise Gives Statement in Answer to Supt. Cary's Charge Regarding Institution.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Feb. 7.—"I do not for a moment doubt, notwithstanding unjustifiable attack, that the regents of the university will never waver in their purpose to have the university lead a hand to the state in any way that the proper authorities request."

This in substance is the answer of President Charles R. Van Hise to the charge of State Supt. C. P. Cary that the University of Wisconsin is exerting too powerful an influence in the administration of the state government.

The executive writes his views in the Wisconsin Journal of Education for February under the title, "The University and the State Superintendent."

"It is not a strange spectacle," asks the president, "that the superintendent of public schools of a state, who should be not only the chief expert in education in the state, but a profound believer in science as applied to life, should take a stand against the use of experts in advancing humanity? I shall not make any suggestions as to his motives, but I ask the teachers of the state to consider for themselves this aspect of the matter."

The amount of bonds each man may give for his appearance before Federal Judge A. Anderson for arraignment here on March 15th, is stated in the indictment. The aggregate of bonds asked, it is said, is $300,000.

The pamphlet deals with ways of determining the community boundary, taking a home census, taking a census of organizations, making a community and other plans, etc. In one survey, says Mr. Galpin, it was found that nearly all the socialized homes in the community were on the main roads and that back roads appear to be great obstacles to social development. The homes on the poorest land, on the sandy stretches, on the marsh margins, or on the stony glacial drift areas, were found to be disconnected from the associated enterprises of the community.

JANESVILLE SCOUTS UP TO STANDARD OF CHICAGO TROOPERS

Local Scoutmaster L. E. Bookout attended the Big Scout Meeting in Chicago Tuesday.

It will be gratifying to the members of the Janesville troop of Boy Scouts to know that their organization is up to the standard of the Chicago troops that appeared before General Baden-Powell the famous Englishman who is the organizer of this world wide movement. L. E. Bookout, local scoutmaster, is in authority for this statement and Mr. Bookout had an opportunity of witnessing the maneuvers of the Chicago troops.

The work of Captain Hans Jacke in drilling the boys is counting and the interest shown by the boys themselves is also developing a first class corps in Janesville. The band drills that are being held at present are interesting the boys and when spring opens it is expected that the outdoor work will be taken up with renewed interest.

Scoutmaster L. E. Bookout went to Chicago yesterday, to attend the meeting of the Boy Scout troops of Chicago and surrounding cities. There were about five thousand Boy Scouts assembled at the Dexter Pavilion, Union Stock Yards, where they were reviewed by Lieut. Gen. Sir. Robert S. S. Baden-Powell of England, the founder of the Boy Scout movement.

After reviewing the troops, exhibitions were given by special groups, in first aid to the injured, camp pitching and drill. Gen. Baden-Powell was greatly pleased with the appearance of the Chicago Scouts and said they were the best he had yet seen in America.

Bookout says that while the troops were usually better equipped than our own local troop, the Janesville Boys can drill, pitch camp and perform other scout duties, as well as the best that were seen at Chicago yesterday.

A dinner was given at the Auditorium Hotel at six o'clock in the evening in honor of James E. West, Chief Scout Executive from New York, here Gen. Baden-Powell met Scoutmasters and other Scout leaders.

At 8:00 p. m. the General gave an illustrated lecture at the Orchestra hall, on the Scout Movement in England and America.

ODD FELLOWS HOSTS AT MILITARY BALL

Annual Event Given by Canton Janesville No. 9 at Assembly Hall

Last Night Was Most Enjoyable Affair.

Nearly two hundred and fifty couples were present at the annual military ball given under the auspices of Canton Janesville No. 9, Patriarchs Militant, I. O. O. F., at Assembly Hall last evening. Beautiful decorations and exquisite music combined to make the affair a very delightful one and the last dance number was played well towards four o'clock this morning.

Long streamers of green and white hung from the walls of the hall to a huge Japanese lantern of yellow and white in the center of the room. Lights softly shaded with yellow and white hung from ropes of greenery, lending to the general attractiveness of the decorations.

The grand march of the Chevalliers, in full uniform was led by Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Koebelin at nine o'clock, after which the dance program was enjoyed. Hatch's full orchestra, augmented by a xylophone artist from Chicago, furnished the best of music and were called upon for many encores.

The success of the affair is due to the committee on arrangements, composed of the following officers of the canton: J. W. Van Buren, Past Commandant; W. H. Van Buren, Commandant; William W. Day, Lieutenant; F. H. Koebelin, Dept. Commander; and James A. Paterson, Past Commandant.

Mrs. W. B. Kerry, C. F. Carr, C. C. Chas. and C. Snyder and George Waterman, were the members of the floor committee.

Among prominent Odd Fellows and wives who were here for the party were: Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Baker of Madison; Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Barrett of Baraboo; Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dugdale of Plattville; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hobbick of Fox Lake, Wis., and Mrs. Pollock of Lancaster.

RUNAWAY GIRLS-ARE FOUND SECOND TIME

Escape From Truant Officer on Way to Industrial School, but Were Located Today at Peconica.

Chief of Police Appleby today succeeded in locating the two girls, Elmer Brooks and Annie Lee, who escaped from the charge of the truant officer for the state industrial school at Milwaukee while awaiting the train for Milwaukee at the St. Paul depot yesterday afternoon. The conductor on the interurban car which left this city at four o'clock yesterday on his return trip, this morning notified Chief Appleby that two girls answering the description, had gone to Rockford yesterday and had been transferred to the Peconica line. It was evident that they were bound for the same community in which they were found by the Milwaukee officer yesterday and that of the state industrial school was notified to this effect this morning.

The girls recently escaped from the reform school and were finally located on a farm near Peconica. They were found by the officer yesterday and arrived in Janesville at twelve o'clock. It was necessary to wait for the 4:30 train to Milwaukee and the majority of the time was spent in the local depot. The girls escaped the vigilance of the officer on a pretext and when they did not return at once it was found that they had gone. The local police were notified but the girls had hurried to the interurban station in time to board the four o'clock car for Rockford. It is evident that they are at present somewhere in the vicinity of Peconica where they are acquainted.

INTEREST IS SHOWN IN INCOME TAX LAW

Discussion Called Forth Regarding Its Application at M. E. Brotherhood Meeting.

Considerable interest was shown in the application of the new income tax law to individuals by members of the Methodist Brotherhood at their regular monthly meeting last evening. Following the banquet which was served to fifty guests at six o'clock, the program on the new tax law was enjoyed. District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie discussed the act as it affects individuals in a clear and comprehensive way and responded to numerous questions which were asked regarding the application. The members present were quick to see some of the apparent inconsistencies of the law which allowed the man with $20,000 invested in mortgages to escape its provisions.

Malcolm H. Jeffries read a paper on the law as applied to corporations and succeeded in giving an adequate description of the workings of the measure in this important direction. Fred J. Holt talked on the qualifications necessary for an income taxpayer, the most important endowments being courage and fortitude in enforcing the law and honesty and industry in securing correct figures and assessments. He read from the speech of Commissioner Adams to indicate what the assessor's work would be and stated that with so much expected from the assessor it would be a "large" task for one man in Rock county.

F. A. Taylor, income tax assessor for this district, was present at the meeting and answered a number of questions and offered a few brief remarks on the work which he will take up at once. The meeting was an exceedingly profitable one and those who were present have a much clearer understanding of the new measure than formerly.

OBITUARY.

Miss Jessie M. McCrea.

Last evening at her mother's home in Afton, Miss Jessie M. McCrea passed away after suffering for two years with consumption. One of the best liked and most popular young ladies while a resident in the city, her cheerful and sunny nature won for her a host of warm friends wherever she went. Miss McCrea was born and brought up in Afton, where she lived until her coming to this city. For nearly a year she was well known as Deputy Clerk at the Court House. She held other positions, until, two years ago, her health began to fail and she left for Wyoming, where under the stimulus of a change of climate she improved for a time. But it was not for long and after eighteen months there she returned to Afton, during the last week of November where she failed rapidly until her death.

She leaves to mourn her loss her mother who resides in Afton and a brother, Harry, living in Wyoming, who is on his way east for the funeral. Arrangements have not been made for the funeral as yet and will be announced later.

John Little.

Funeral services for the late John Little will be held at his home in the town of Janesville. Thursday afternoon at 1:30. Interment will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Warren L. Hoag.

The nine days' old baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hoag died yesterday at the home of his parents, 18 South Palm street. The interment will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Fenn.

Announcement of the death of Mrs. Fenn at Rudd, Iowa, was received in the city yesterday and the body arrived here at 7:50 this morning. The funeral was held at 10:25 this morning and the interment was made in Oak Hill cemetery. Charles Atwood, Daniel Watson, George Grogan, and Edward Kennedy acted as pallbearers. The body was accompanied here by her son who returned to Rudd this afternoon.

BRITISH NAVY SHAM.

London, England.—The bomb shell thrown by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford into the circle of military men favoring the "Dreadnought Policy" of England has created international attention.

In his book, "The Betrayal," in spite of its having been censured by the English government, he scathingly arraigns the English policy calling it a delusion which left England unprepared when on the verge of war with Germany in July. In one part he says as follows:

"The public were and are hypnotized by the Dreadnought Policy. The excessive and vulgar advertisement lavished upon this experimental vessel was by no means justified. The effect of that advertisement not only led the British public into a delusion from which they are still suffering, but created mutual irritation among foreign powers."

"In 1906 the tradition of dignity and courtesy hitherto prevailing in the service was rudely violated and Great Britain proclaimed herself as the Bully of the Seas."

"All that the British Admiralty had accomplished was to publish a new design just in time to enable other nations to profit by its defects."

Terrible Suffering

Eczema All Over Baby's Body.

"When my baby was four months old his face broke out with eczema, and at sixteen months of age, his face, hands and arms were in a dreadful state. The eczema spread all over his body. We had to put a mask or cloth over his face and tie up his hands. Finally we gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a few months he was entirely cured. Today he is a healthy boy." Mrs. Inez Lewis, Barling, Maine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures blood diseases and builds up the system. Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsabars.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

TELL THE TRUTH.

Wanted.—Situation by a boy of sixteen. Has been arrested for stealing. Address Evening Press, Kalamazoo, Mich.

The advertisement was printed one day not long ago, precisely as reproduced herewith.

And a brave ad, it is.

The boy was in jail. And he stole. His name is Charles Humphrey, and this is the story:

When the lad was fourteen years of age his father ran away, leaving the mother, Charles and a baby brother. The boy bravely took his place as head of the household. His earnings, though small, supported the invalid mother and the two children.

Charles lost his job. He tried desperately to get another. Occasionally he found something to do, but could get no regular employment. The little family began to be in great want. The sight of his suffering mother and brother was almost more than the lad could endure.

One day he rushed from the poor dwelling in tears and took everything he could lay his hands on.

"The little thief!"

But wait. You do not understand.

When Charles was arrested and asked why he had been taking things he refused to open his mouth. Like the Grecian boy who let the wolf gnaw his vitals while he smiled, young Humphrey was silent. The court sent an officer to the home, and this is what he found:

The dwelling was a mere shack. Although the air was cold, there was no fire and no fuel. The chill wind drove through the cracks. There was no morsel of food. The bedclothes were mere rags. The mother was half clad and the little boy almost naked.

"He was always a good boy," sobbed the poor mother. "He worked hard when he could get a job, and we were starving."

That's all.

Excepting this—the boy who will stand between mother and the kid and the gaunt wolf starvation and go to jail without a whimper has got a man inside of him.

And more—

A boy who will acknowledge his theft and then ask for a situation deserves the situation—and a chance.

It confirms one's faith in human nature to learn that Charles got his chance and is making good.

Reflex-ions (No. 4)

When, after the work of the day is over, the family sits down to the evening meal everything should combine to make the occasion a cheerful one. There can be no real cheerfulness in a poorly lighted room. Gloom settles over the family. Even if the room is brightly lighted gloom may still settle over the one who pays the bills because of the high cost of that light.

That condition is not found, however, at dining tables upon which the light is shed from Reflex Lamps. Incandescent Gas Lamps are acknowledged to be the most economical modern lighting devices known. Reflex Lamps give more actual light at less cost than any other form of artificial light known today. There can not be a gloomy feeling, due to the lighting, where Reflex Lamps are used. That is why Tigers do Not Give Naps a Chance at Any of Three Games—Sutherland and High Man With 173.

Hard luck seemed to follow the Naps last night in the match with the Tigers at Rockwell's alley and they were unable to come nearer than 10 points of winning a game. In the last game they were defeated by a margin of 90 points despite the fact that they bowled a total of 691 points in the game. Sutherland of the Tigers took the credit of bowling high score for one game when he made 173 and an average of 162 for the three games. Gzell came next with an average of 160 for the three games. DULUTH WITHDRAWS
FROM ASSOCIATION

Failing to Secure International Ski Tourney They Abandon the Old Organization.

(By Associated Press.)

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 7.—The meeting of the directors of the Duluth Ski club last night voted to withdraw from the National Ski association. That Duluth will not hold the next international meet which was voted to be held in this city at Chicago two weeks ago is a certainty. It is further said that the Duluth organization will enter an amateur union of six of the largest ski centers in America which is being planned for. As a part of this new program, an amateur tournament to excel any tournament yet held here is to be held on Feb. 25th.

BASEBALL NOTES

The Chicago Cubs would like to cap the Miller of the Boston Braves. So would fourteen other major league clubs.

Bob Ewing says he doesn't care whether he plays ball or not. He is raising fancy swine and getting big money for the porkers.

Grover Alexander, Geo. Paskari, and Fred Alexander have signed contracts for the season 1912-13-14 with Philadelphia Nationals.

Jack Lally is to be given a tryout at first base by Manager Ganzel of the Rochester team. Lally played left field for Washington last season.

Pittsburgh fans have nothing to worry them. Marty O'Toole, the "$22,500, twirling beauty", has sent his signed contract to President Barney Dreyfus.

Hugh McInnes doubts that his Jersey City Club is to be a farm for the Boston Red Sox. "Nothing like that in the 'Sheeter' family," says Hugh.

Harry Day, whose work used to be right the Cleveland fans, is signing up a bunch of likely looking players for his Bloomington team in the Three I league.

The new Ohio and Pennsylvania leagues have been organized with six clubs. McKeesport, New Castle, Butler, Sharon, East Liverpool, and Steubenville in the circuit.

Gene Demontreville, the former Boston-Pittsburgh star, will once more don the spangles and lead the new Cotton States league team that is to be placed in New Orleans.

A new Iowa league is being talked of to comprise the cities of Waterloo, Cedar Rapids, Oskaloosa and Mason City. Waterloo and Cedar Rapids were formerly in the Three I league.

Jack Grim, the old Brooklyn player, will manage the Newark State league team next season. Jack has had quite a lot of experience in the minor leagues since leaving the big show.

Pitcher Sam Leever will not be able to report to the Minneapolis club at the start of the season. The "Schoolmaster" was thrown from a horse recently and his knee was badly injured.

Arthur Hines, the third base recruit from Seattle, is expected to deliver the fancy article for the Glants the coming season. Hines led the Northwestern league in batting last season with an average of .353, and made 27 home runs.

When Harry Wolverton leads his New York Yankees on the field for the opening battle of the season, he will be presented with a loving cup, the gift of Oakland (Calif.) fans. Harry managed the Oakland team last season and made good.

WITH THE BOXERS

Peddle Welch, the English boxer, expects to be back in the game again next March.

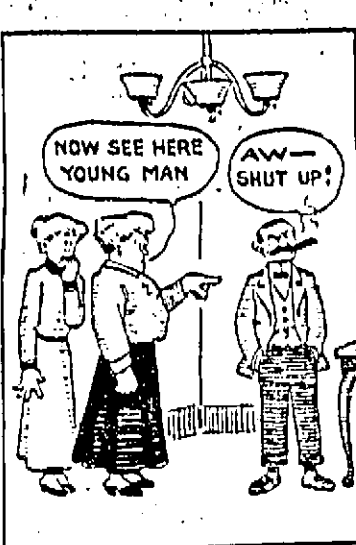

After making a successful tour of England, Willie Houck, the featherweight boxer, has returned to his home in Philadelphia.

"Dear Doctors: Ever since I can remember—from my earliest childhood—I have suffered from violent headache and shortness of breath. I was unable to run fast, even a block without losing my breath and my heart getting to beat violently. I have used different medicines without getting relief, however.

It is now less than month's time since I started your remarkable treatment and I wish to say that my headache and shortness of breath have entirely left me and I feel fine and well.

JANESVILLE BOY IN JUNIOR CLASS PLAY

John Sheridan Takes Leading Part in Annual Junior Play at Madison.

Next Week.

John E. Sheridan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sheridan of this city, who has been attending the University of Wisconsin for the past three years, has been chosen to take the leading part in the Junior class play which will be given at the Fuller Opera House one week from tonight. The play chosen this year is entitled, "The Lonely Cousins," and was written by the well known college play author, A. H. Koller.

This is one of the biggest honors which has been conferred on a Janesville boy for several years at the University and Mr. Sheridan has the congratulation of many friends in this city. To be chosen as one of the few to represent the class out of a total of eight hundred and thirteen in their annual play, speaks well of his ability as an actor and also of the representatives which Janesville sends to the University.

LOCAL Y. M. C. A. JUNIORS ENJOYED RECENT VISIT.

Junior Classes Entertained Fine Class From Evansville a Short Time Ago.

One week ago Monday about twenty five members of the Evansville Y. M. C. A. Juniors made a very short but interesting trip to Janesville to visit the local Juniors. The morning was spent in gymnasium work followed by a number of games of basketball which the local boys won with the exception of one or two. This is the second class that has come over here for a trip the other bunch arriving on Thanksgiving and enjoying a work out with the Janesville members. The cut shows the representatives of the two cities as they appeared just before they left for home.

A Harmless Cough Cure

Would you give morphine or chloroform to your baby or take it yourself? Of course not. Yet most patent cough cures contain one or both. They stop a cough in a minute, which is dangerous. A cough should be cured internally by healing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, throwing it out, which is done by coughing. Badger Cough Balsam does not contain morphine or chloroform. It is made by percolation from bloodroot, lobelia, pine bark, wild cherry, etc. It cures a cough in a few days without filling the lungs with poisonous phlegm. The irritation is relieved, the lungs healed without danger of pneumonia. It's safe for children or old people. Get a bottle today for 25 cents. Badger Cough Balsam is made by Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and Silver Sts.

An area of low atmospheric pressure has invaded the Lake Region, coming from the "uncharted" region west of Hudson Bay. It has been attended by snow storms in the Lake Region and Ohio valley. The inflow of cold air into it from the Northwest has produced a drop of 10° or 12° degrees below zero in the Red River valley, Manitoba, and Saskatchewan, and will be felt in this vicinity this afternoon and tonight.

The atmospheric pressure continues high, and the weather corresponding by fair throughout the South. An area of low barometer is approaching the north Pacific coast, attended by cloudiness throughout the Plateau Region and Columbia Basin, and general rains on the coast as far south as San Francisco.

In this vicinity the weather will continue fair, with lower temperature tonight and Thursday.

"As the legend, if self-constituted leader of the insurgent-progressives, it has been difficult to see how Senator La Follette could continue to pose as their presidential candidate when their allegiance began to crumble with the first blast of the Roosevelt boom and Democrats like Senator Cummins deserted in their own self-interest."

"But the fate of Senator La Follette as a presidential candidate is of far less importance and interest as a personal political issue than as an illustration of the true inward character of the insurgent-progressives movement."

"If there is one thing that has damned the leadership of that movement in the public mind more than its abandonment of principle when it opposed reciprocity, it is the uncertainty and vacillation of that leadership since it has set about actively to control the republican convention."

"From the beginnings of this active effort it has been evident that the most prominent insurgent-progressives appeared to know neither their own minds nor their standard bearer. They accepted La Follette, a almost-pure insurgent, with reservation and had grace, then flocked to Roosevelt, who has never been an insurgent, without so much as a word of sanction on his part."

"During the course of these events there has been plenty of intrigue for personal ends within the ranks of the faction, but the people have yet to be provided with a single definite statement of its principles and policies."

"The character and purpose of the insurgent-progressives movement that has thus been revealed, and now receives a final flash from the abdication of Senator La Follette, is one of negation and self-seeking."

"This tells a story in itself. It gives the meat of the whole nut in a few crisp sentences and still there will be some who say that insurgency means progress."

GET THE MONEY.

Among the obnoxious laws which the reform administration of the state have succeeded upon us in this era of reform is the income tax. Just what it is to result in is thus far purely theoretical, but the advice of T. S. Adams, one of the state tax commissioners, is the income tax, is illustrative of the doctrine and policy of the whole state mismanagement.

"Get the money" is to be the slogan. Get the money regardless of how you get it. Shut your eyes to all else but get the money out in the state or don't come back here with excuses. Of all the socialist addresses in this day and age the talk of Prof. Adams reaches the climax. Of course one must understand that until "Prof." Adams received his appointment as tax commissioner of the state he was a theoretician and instructor in political economy—one of the school of dreamers at the state university that the tax-payers of the state support. This may be some excuse for his remarks, but it does not help matters any.

Janesville has felt the myrtle touch of these dreamers and theoretical disciples of reform in the recent reassessment of the city. Under the guidance of a few "students" of the monetary question, the city has been reassessed. The assessors were sent down here evidently with the instructions, the same as given to the income assessors—"Get the money or do not come back." They got the money and have gone back. They have left in their wake a city where taxes have been raised, property values increased beyond even a possibility of selling prices, and industries crippled in a way that will take years to overcome the influences of.

They were aided in their "guess work" assessment by a few citizens who evidently paid off old-time grievances. However that is not here nor there. The state has had the income tax saddled on it and the property owners, wage-earners and suburban residents are at the mercy of the socialist teachings of the income assessors. "Go out and get the money throughout the state or don't come back." One might expect some Italian organ-grinder who had just come from his native land to go, instruct his children when he sent them out to pick up pennies in a large city, but to have such instructions handed down to the men who must assess the valuations and incomes of the citizens of the state, it is little short of an anarchistic doctrine. Prof. Adams, in an address to the assessors, said in part as follows:

"Finally, we expect you to get results. By results we mean taxable income—not explanations of why you can not get it, on the one hand, or resentment and lawsuits on the other hand; but taxable income charged against taxpayers who, if they do not actually resist the situation, can at least not object to its equity and fairness. The income is out there in the state, plenty of it. To tax it fairly, adequately, lawfully, is success; not to tax it is failure, however much we quibble, however much we excuse, however much we explain."

"We hope when we re-assemble next year that you will all be able to explain your work in an interesting and graphic way. But the explanations should be how you got it, not why you didn't get it. We hope that in your correspondence with this office you will write a neat hand and ask your questions in a logical, pointed fashion. But you may scrawl worse than Horace Greeley and be dumb as the driven cattle—provided you turn in a fat assessment roll. We hope that when we come to examine your records we shall find them clear, any systematic and accurate. We hate slovenliness, love order and despise disorder. But records are not taxes. Statistics are only weak imitations of real results. Do not fiddle around over unnecessary clerical work. To a large degree you will have to shift for yourselves, plan your own campaigns, devise your own methods."

The problem is too different in different parts of the state to lay down cast-iron administrative rules. This means for you considerable freedom. But it also means responsibility—responsibility for results, particularly negative results."

Is this republicanism? Is this the doctrine the taxpayers are going to stand for and support?

Superintendent of public instruction Cary will probably make another run for his present position. Mr. Cary has made many good enemies by his disclosure as to the mismanagement of the state university and his candidacy will be received with joy by taxpayers throughout the state that are tired of the continual drain upon the public purse for the purpose of teaching doctrine of socialism and theoretical policies of government as illustrated by the present laws of the state.

It would appear as though President Taft was going to be benefited by the change in front of the insurgents. There are a lot of the so-called insurgents who were really at heart Taft men who will be glad of the opportunity of returning to the fold of the conservative republicans now that the opportunity is given them.

The state board of agriculture made no mistake when they elected McKenzie as secretary and O. G. Rowley as president of their board. Both men are good, capable officials and will do credit to the state and the organization in which they are officers.

Congress should be ashamed of itself to have even thought of passing a law that a President could not have three terms if he deserved it. However, it failed to carry, so no damage was done.

It has taken the Manchus prices a long time to pack their trunks and decide to leave Peking.

APUR THE MOMENT

If Washington lived among us would he wonder if he could be a tax assessor? When facing the tax assessor, I wonder if he would try to be quite sincere and truthful, or would he resort to stealth like most of our present day magistrates?

When naming their share of wealth? When yanked up for auto racing, I wonder what he would say regarding the speed he was going? If Washington lived today.

Would Washington still be truthful, or would he equivocate, if a present day Marquis would meet him?

When he came home very late? When she fired her questions at him, would he tell the truth or dodge, and say he'd been with a sick brother. A brother, you know, of the lodge? If she called him up at his office by phone and found him away, I wonder how on earth he'd square it, if Washington lived today.

If Martha took him to Grand Opera, because the society folk went, would he tell the grim truth about it? When asked if he knew what it meant?

Would he say he liked it immensely? The pleasant evening he'd spent? Would he give his honest opinion, or would he just lie like a goat? Take all of our present day mortals, he might find it wouldn't pay to stick to the truth about some things, if Washington lived today.

Let Us Solve Your Coal Problem

No doubt this changeable weather is making you a lot of furnace difficulty. It's hard to regulate a fire unless you have fuel that you know is good. Your coal will not give a slow steady fire for the warm days and an exceedingly hot one for the cold snaps.

Standard coals, of known values will give you the best satisfaction. We handle nothing but Scranton and Lehigh, both standard coals.

Davenport Would Take Away One of the Leading Industries on Promise of Inducements.

One of the first efforts of the ill advised attempt of an aspiring politician to gain public favor by obtaining a reassessment of the city's property is shown in the following letter which was received by one of the leading local manufacturers. That the reassessment has made it possible for other ambitious cities to seek to obtain local industries is certain, and other firms are known to have received letters of similar nature. The name of this firm is withheld in the letter however being an exact copy of the one received.

Davenport, Iowa, Feb. 5th, 1932.

Dear Sir:

The best located city in the Middle West, by none, has a factory building at the present time which would be ideal as a home for your business. We know you are thinking of getting away from certain conditions in Wisconsin which are not satisfactory. We have no conditions here but which contribute to industrial expansion. The statements which you will find in the enclosed leaflet and the booklet which is sent you under separate cover, may be relied upon. We are absolutely honest when we say we have the cheapest power in the Middle West. Also, when we claim to enjoy ideal labor conditions, we mean it and are willing to submit the matter to any investigation. The railroad facilities and general manufacturing advantages are apparent after glancing at the enclosed leaflet.

Let us know just what you have in mind and probably we can get together on terms that would be very satisfactory to you.

Very truly yours,

Woodrow Cham, Sec.

Greater Davenport Committee.

Are Marriage And A Career Compatible?

WOMEN are far ahead of what they were even twenty-five years ago in the solution of this problem of marriage and a career. At one time, these two were thought of as far apart as the poles, and noted women have sadly relinquished marriage for a career, or a career for marriage, believing this the only way to settle the matter.

But from time to time, courageous women have come forward and proved that marriage and career might go hand in hand. And so the situation is slowly improving. But it is not yet where it might be, as occasional items cropping up in the news prove.

One of these came to light the other day in the announcement of the beginning of divorce proceedings between a noted opera singer and her husband.

The husband is a professional man and does not wish to give up his profession in order to be with his wife. Of course, he thinks she ought to give up her profession to be with him. That, in turn, is largely the accepted viewpoint. She has spent just as many years studying and preparing as he has. She enjoys her art quite as much as he does his practice. She makes just as much money at it, if not more, than does he. If this featured needs to be considered, that because she marries, she is expected to give all this up, asks her to do so. And because she is advanced enough not to see the force of tradition, he is suing for a divorce.

But if he were a little more considerate, a little bigger mentally, or a little more loving, would a divorce be necessary? Why could she not enjoy her season of work, and when vacation time came, the two be together? Why couldn't he be unselfish enough, and broad enough to grant her this freedom, and be glad to let her exercise her talent and express her individuality thus, since it runs in this direction?

Another noted opera singer has a husband who does this, and they are a most devoted couple. No rejoicing in her talent, has furthered it and does further it all he can. He has never put the slightest obstacle in the way of her doing the work she loves. Yet they have a beautiful home life and six lovely children. She is both famous as an opera singer, and is one of the country's favorites, and loved and cherished as a wife and mother. This man is, by present standards, exceptional. But he has the big, broad outlook that can understand a woman's nature, and see that she may develop and use her talents, as well as his own.

If a woman is satisfied with the domestic life, all well and good. But because she may have gifts other than those of a domestic nature, it does not seem right that she should be cut off from the domestic life just because man is too narrow to see that she can encompass both, or too selfish to wish her to do aught but minister to his comfort.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

PRAY, Miss Cameron," writes a correspondent at the close of a letter inveighing against the flirtations between married men and the women with whom they come in contact in the pursuit of their professions, "do you know why Caesar's wife must always be above suspicion, but Caesar can do (well, pardon the slang) any old thing?"

The question arises because of its complimentary implication of a cheerful trust in my omniscience.

Dear lady, I don't know why that peculiar state of things exists any more than any of the wise men who have tried to explain and justify it could know why.

I've often heard it said that the underlying principle of man's demand for purity in his womanhood, and freedom for himself, is that man's fidelity would have no effect on the offspring, whereas woman's might taint the line. I wonder what the workers, who are fighting the black plague, and who know how large a part of the blindness, the imbecility, and the inherited disease of all kinds, come from that source—think of this serene assurance that man's fidelity can have no effect on his offspring.

No, I don't believe we can account for the double standard of morality in any such simple way. If I were to hazard a guess on this much discussed topic, it would be this—that man enforces a double standard of morality, because man is stronger and can have what he wants and wants that.

There is no doubt in my mind that by nature—or by their baser natures, let us say—men are polygamists.

I know a man who loves his wife and two children devotedly. Once when they had some domestic trouble, and she threatened to leave him, he was almost heartbroken. And yet I know that his mind is continually running after every pretty woman who comes within his orbit.

I know of another man who has a very beautiful wife. When he last devoted, he has three adorable children and a lovely home. His wife was born, his wife was very ill and a young girl, who was a distant cousin, came to live in the house. And because his wife was so ill, that he could spend little of his time with her, and because the cousin happened to be young and passably good-looking, that man actually tried to work up a desperate flirtation with the young girl.

That's the baser side of masculine nature.

And if that doesn't show a tendency towards polygamy, I don't know what does.

Social man, the law-giver, has decided that monogamous state of society is far and away the best.

Individual man, the weak human being, is constantly rebelling against monogamy, and since he is the stronger of the sexes and the ruler, he manages to transgress his own laws almost unrepented, while he absolutely refuses to permit woman's transgressions.

And that, my lady friend, is my guess why "Caesar's wife must always be above suspicion," but Caesar can do (well, pardon the slang) any old thing."

SOUPS FROM PRESERVED MILK.

To a majority of people the use of condensed milk seems an extravagant expenditure, but when fresh milk is not obtainable, as it is not in many places removed from civilization, condensed milk is a wonderful boon, and the number of dishes which may be prepared from such milk is legion.

For soups, when wishing a creamed soup, the condensed milk is especially good.

Fish Chowder.—Salt water fish, or salt fish freshened, or any fresh water fish makes delicious chowder. When using fresh fish, clean and remove the hard skin and bones, shiner the bones in water to cover, and cut the fish in two-inch pieces. Cut a fourth of a cup of salt pork in small dice and cook until the fat is extracted; add a small onion, chopped fine, and cook until yellow. Add two cups of rice and parboiled potatoes, the liquor in which the bones have been cooked; add the fish and cook until the vegetables and fish are tender. Add a cup of condensed milk diluted with a cup of boiling water, a teaspoonful of salt and a little paprika; turn into a soup tureen over a half a dozen crackers. More seasoning will have to be added if the fish is fresh.

Cream of Corn Soup.—Add a quart of water to a cup of corn, cook together until thoroughly hot; add a tablespoonful each of flour and butter cooked together, season with salt and pepper and serve hot with crackers.

Cream of Tomato Soup.—Press a cup of cooked tomato through a sieve and heat; add a fourth of a cup of butter and flour cooked together. When well mixed add a cup of condensed milk diluted with a cup of water; cook until boiling hot and serve with buttered toast.

Any vegetable, such as peas, asparagus, potato or celery with condensed milk diluted and a binding of flour and butter added, makes very acceptable soup.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Broad Economies. Preventing Waste and Saving the Possible Left-overs.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

Although some housewives fret greatly over the petty details of their life yet to be successful they must, like John Gilpin's wife, have a frugal mind. A good motto for the kitchen is "a good favor is a good server." Yet there are economical ways and extravagant ways of living. Eating to satiety at the risk of illness is a poor plan so is putting expensive additions with left-overs to make them fit to serve a second time.

An inspection of the average garbage pail would reveal a considerable waste of bread. This is especially true if baker's bread is used for this kind of bread quickly when cut and, if more is carelessly sliced than is needed at each meal, the waste is worth looking after.

The fashion of cutting from the loaf the table on a fancy bread board, is a good one to follow in some families, where it is not easy to estimate how much will be needed. Under the best management some cut

Should milk or cream be eaten if it is a little sour or tainted?

Soured milk is more easily digested than sweet, but it is best to use a special culture developed from the souring tablets.

Should olive oil be used by one with a weak stomach?

Olive oil is more digestible than any other fat except cream and unroasted fresh peanut oil. A tablespoonful may be taken morning and evening, but take it in sips, reducing it to an emulsion by agitation in the mouth before swallowing. The treatment which I have proved by test to be very beneficial. Oil may be taken with sugar, fruits, not with cereals. Fat prevents the access of the digestive juices to protides and cereals, especially when not emulsified. It retards gastric secretion and facilitates passage from the stomach, facts that may be advantageously applied.

MRS. CHARLES NETCHER
SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS WOMAN HOLDS RECORD INSURANCE POLICY

Chicago, Ill.—For a woman to be insured for $1,200,000 is unprecedented in life insurance annals. Mrs. Charles Netcher, who, since her husband's death, has conducted the immense detail of one of Chicago's largest department stores, has just taken out a new policy of $500,000, making a total bread will be left uneaten, and if it is not all needed in toast of various forms some of it may be risked and served hot when it resembles pulled bread or hot butter.

To prepare rusk bread put the broken pieces on a pan in a dry moderate oven and let stand to dry thoroughly and gradually become a light brown color. If not burned it is tempting in appearance and much liked to serve hot with salad, with cheese or with cream. In this form it has no suggestion of economy.

Another way to use this rusked bread is to cut it in half inch cubes and mix about three-quarters of a cup of water. Dry in the oven and use for croutons in soup and as a substitute for soup sticks.

If stale bread is dried in the oven without browning it can be rolled to break it coarsely and then stored in glass or tin cans to be used for croutons or for the crumbs are right at hand ready to use and the fact that they are ready to use to make up other odds and ends of food. Crumbs rolled as fine as meal can be used for crumbling foods to be fried in deep fat.

Bread pudding has a bad name for so many combinations are served in this guise which are an insult to digestion. Many cooks believe that they are practicing economy when they serve a bread pudding when really the bread rather detracts from the dessert that could be made from the other ingredients alone.

A fruit charlotte will use stale bread in an appetizing way and is capable of several variations. Line a well buttered earthen baking dish with bread cut an inch thick, soaked lightly in cold water and dotted with

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

BACHELORS RULED OUT.

By A. W. MACY.

In 1794 the moderate Republicans of France, who wished to establish a republican form of government, held a convention and prepared a new constitution to be voted on by the people. In some respects it was very good, and much superior to any which had preceded it. It provided that the legislative powers should be committed to two bodies, as in the United States. The higher one, corresponding to the United States senate, was to be called "The Council of the Ancients." It was to consist of 250 members, each of whom was to be at least 40 years of age, and a married man or a widower. An unmarried man was not considered equal to the responsibility of being a member of this weighty body. The second or lower body was to consist of 500 members, each of whom must be at least 30 years of age. There was no restriction in regard to being married or unmarried, however. In the rapid whirl of events this constitution was soon left slight of, along with a great many other things, and the French bachelors escaped the impending humiliation.

Lady Baltimore Cake

The Most Popular Cake This Season
By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

This is considered by many cooking authorities the finest cake that can be made, though in reality it is not at all difficult.

KC Lady Baltimore Cake
One cup butter; 2 cups granulated sugar; 1 cup milk; 1 teaspoonful water; 3½ cups flour; 3 level teaspoonsfuls K C Baking Powder; whites of 6 eggs, beaten dry.

Cream the butter and beat in the sugar gradually. Sift together, three times, the flour and baking powder, and add to the butter and sugar, alternately with the milk and rose water. Lastly, add the egg whites, beaten in three-layer cake pans. Put the layers together with the following frosting:

Three cups granulated sugar; 1 cup boiling water; 1 cup milk; 1 cup chopped walnut; 1 cup chopped nutmeg; 1 egg; 1 cup cream.

Stir the sugar and water until the sugar is dissolved, then let boil without stirring until the syrup from a spoon will spin a long thread; pour upon the whites of the eggs, beaten dry, beating constantly meanwhile. Continue the beating until the frosting is cold; add the fruit and spread upon the cake.

"My Dear Governor:

"Your speech on La Follette is the first open attack in a national way that really takes hold of the subject with anything like an unbiased statement. A year ago last fall I published a statement, 'Why We Oppose La Follette,' in which I related some of the things he had done in his career which I thought marked him as unfit for public confidence. Vastly more than what I said then could be honestly and fairly stated now. For years, while he was struggling for public recognition in Wisconsin, I was his friend. I thought in a friendly way, I desired to serve his state more than himself, and as such he has been friendly and in every other way that I could.

"But I soon discovered that he was a man; that he was the most cruel and selfish in his disposition of any public man I had ever met. He ruled his faction with a tyranny that was amazing. Not one of his friends was ventured to oppose him in his attacks upon other public men of the state.
He developed a fiendish hatred for John C. Spooner that was past belief.
This I would not justify, and we came to open disagreement. But he had further use for me, and dissembled his wrath until he was safely in Spooner's seat. The first thing to start me was to his lack of conscience and regard for law was his refusal to abide by the verdict of the majority. A conflict arose in the Whitehall assembly district between two of his friends, Eckert and Twomey. Eckert was his favorite. Twomey would not retire, and went before the people of the district. La Follette went into the district and urged the voters to nominate Eckert. They refused, and nominated Twomey. Then he took the stump openly and urged a bolt against Twomey, and the reputation of the primary repudiated.

"Repudiated the Primary."

"This the voters would not do, and turned him down the second time. The same thing occurred in this senatorial district. Z. H. Beach, of Whitecourt, won the primary vote. La Follette came into the district and urged his friends to vote for Hazelwood, a democrat, and Hazelwood was elected. Then followed his wolfish attacks upon Stephenson, which was the most distasteful repudiation of every obligation of friendship and gratitude I ever heard of. But for Stephenson, La Follette could never have carried on his campaign, and he bled the old man to the extent of tens of thousands of dollars.

"I could not stand for such a wolf-ish spirit, and so, as I said, I broke with him squarely. Ever since I have been doing what I ever in the Jefferson County Union to tell the truth concerning him.

"Thinks Him Dangerous."

"I believe him to be the most dangerous man that has arisen in America since the primary vote. La Follette is a man who is absolutely unscrupulous, nor any of the common elements of honor among men will be allowed to stand in the way of his ambition.
He is thick-skinned to cast his aside.
"You notice that he made no reply to your very temperate and just arguments concerning him. This is his game. When exposed he keeps still and here he is very shrewd. You struck him an honest and deserved blow when you declared that La Follette alone, everything else is merely a cover."

"I believe that you have done your country a great service in your criticism, only wish you much too lenient with him. There is scarcely a man left of his first friends in this state who are now supporting him. There is something radically wrong with him of whom this can be truthfully said."

"Pardon me for taking so much of your time in this long letter, but it did not seem possible to say less and say but a medium of the truth. I can not see how any consistent and honest republican owes him a breath of support. He has receding of our state university a mere recruiting station for his faction. It is a shame."

"Very sincerely,

"W. D. HOARD."

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Now, can you figure out who is the real boss of the family?

The PHANTOM OF THE OPERA

by Gaston Leroux Author of
THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW RACE and THE PERFUME OF THE LADY IN BLACK Illustrations by M. G. Kettner
Copyright 1911 by The Bobbs-Merrill Company

She took him to the wardrobe and property-rooms, took him all over her empire, which was artificial, but immense, covering seventeen stories from the ground-floor to the roof and inhabited by an army of subjects. She moved among them like a popular queen, encouraging them in their labors, sitting down in the workshops, giving words of advice to the workmen whose hands hesitated to cut in to the rich stuffs that were to clothe her. There were inhabitants of that country who practiced every trade. There were cobblers, there were goldsmiths. All had learned to know her and to love her, for she always interested herself in all their troubles and all their little hobbies.

She knew unsuspected corners that were secretly occupied by little old couples. She knocked at their door and introduced Raoul to them as a Prince Charming who had asked for her hand; and the two of them, sitting on some worn-out "property," would listen to the legends of the opera, even as, in their childhood, they had listened to the old Breton tales. Those old people remembered nothing outside the opera. They had lived there for years without number. Past unnumbered had forgotten them; no notice of them; the history of France had run its course unknown to them; and nobody recollected their existence.

The precious days sped in this way; and Raoul and Christine, by affecting excessive interest in outside matters, strove awkwardly to hide from each other the one thought of their hearts. One fact was certain, that Christine, who until then had shown herself the ingenuously nervous, when on their expeditions, she would start running without reason or else suddenly stop; and her hand, turning ice-cold in a moment, would hold the young man back, sometimes her eyes seemed to pursue imaginary shadows. She cried, "This way," and "This way," and "This way," laughing a breathless laugh that often ended in tears. Then Raoul tried to speak, to question her, in spite of his promises. But, even before he had worded his question, she answered feverishly:

"Nothing . . . I swear it is nothing."

Once, when they were passing before an open trapdoor on the stage, Raoul stopped over the dark cavity.

"You have shown me over the upper part of your empire, Christine, but there are strange stories told of the lower part. Shall we go down?"

She caught him in her arms, as though she feared to see him disappear down the black hole, and, in a trembling voice, whispered:

"Never! . . . I will not have you go there! . . . Besides, it's not mine . . . everything that is underground belongs to him!"

Raoul looked her in the eyes and said roughly:

"So he lives down there, does he?"

"I never said so. . . . Who told you a thing like that? Come away! I sometimes wonder if you are quite sane, Raoul. . . . You always take things in such an impossible way. . . . Come alone! Come!"

And she literally dragged him away, for he was obstinate and wanted to remain by the trap-door; that hole attracted him.

Suddenly, the trap-door was closed and so quickly that they did not even see the hand that worked it; and they remained quite dazed.

"Perhaps he was there," Raoul said, at last.

She shrugged her shoulders, but did not seem any.

"No, no, it was the 'trap-door-shutters." They must do something, you know. . . . They open and shut the trap-doors without any particular reason. . . . It's like the 'door-shutters'; they must spend their time somehow."

"But suppose it were he, Christine?"

"No, no! He has shut himself up, he is working."

"Oh, really? He's working, is he?"

"Yes, he can't open and shut the trap-doors and work at the same time," she shivered.

"What is he working at?"

"Oh, something terrible! . . . But it's all the better for us. . . . When he's working at that, he sees nothing; he does not eat, drink, or breathe for days and nights at a time. . . . He becomes a living dead man and has no time to amuse himself with the trap-doors."

She shivered again. She was still holding him in her arms. Then she sighed and said, in her turn:

"Suppose it were he!"

"Are you afraid of him?"

"No, of course not," she said.

For all that, on the next day and the following days, Christine was careful to avoid the trap-doors. Her agitation only increased as the hours passed. At last, one afternoon, she arrived very late, with her face so desperately pale, that Raoul resolved to go to all lengths, including that which he forebade when he hurried out that he would not go on the North Pole expedition unless she first told him the secret of the man's name.

"Hush! Hush, in heaven's name! Suppose he heard you, you unfortunate Raoul!"

And Christine's eyes stared wildly at everything around her.

"I will remove you from his power, Christine. I swear it. And you shall not think of him any more."

"Is it possible?"

She allowed herself this doubt, which was an encouragement, while dragging the young man up to the topmost floor of the theater, far, very far from the trap-doors.

"I shall hide you in some unknown corner of the world, where he cannot come to look for you. You will be safe; and then I shall go away. . . . as you have sworn never to marry."

Christine seized Raoul's hands and squeezed them with incredible rapture. But, suddenly becoming alarmed again, she turned away her head.

"Hush!" she said. "Hush!"

And she dragged him up toward the summit.

He had a difficulty in following her. They were soon under the very roof, in the maze of timberwork. They slipped through the buttresses, the rafters, the joists; they ran from beam to beam as they might have run from tree to tree in a forest.

And, despite the care which she took to look behind her at every moment, she failed to see a shadow which followed her like her own shadow, which stopped when she stopped, which started again when she did, and which made no more noise than a well-conducted shadow should. As for Raoul, he saw nothing either; for, when he had Christine in front of him, nothing interested him that happened behind.

CHAPTER XII.

Apollo's Lyre.

In this way, they reached the roof. Christine tripped over as lightly as a swallow. Their eyes swept the empty space between the two domes and the triangular pediment. She breathed freely over Paris, the whole valley of which was seen at work below. She called Raoul to come quite close to her and they walked side by side, adding the "zifz" effect, in the London avenues; they looked at their twin shapes in the huge tanks, full of stagnant water, where, in the hot weather, the little boys of the ballet, a score or so, learn to swim and dive. The shadow had followed behind them, clinging to their steps; and the two children little suspected its presence when they at last sat down, trusting, under the mighty protection of Apollo, who, with a great bronze gesture, lifted his huge lyre to the heart of a gorgeous sky.

It was a gorgeous spring evening. Clouds, which had just received their gossamer robe of gold and purple from the setting sun, drifted slowly by; and Christine said to Raoul:

"Soon we shall go farther and faster than the clouds, to the end of the world, and then you will leave me, Raoul. But, if, when the moment comes for you to take me away, I refuse to go with you—we will you must carry me off by force!"

"Are you afraid that you will change your mind, Christine?"

"I don't know," she said, shaking her head in an odd fashion. "He is a demon!" And she shivered and trembled in his arms with a moan. "I am afraid now of going back to live with him. . . . In the ground!"

"What compels you to go back, Christine?"

"If I do not go back to him, terrible misfortunes may happen to me. . . . But I can't do it, I can't do it! . . . I know one ought to be sorry for people who live underground. . . . But he is too horrible! And yet the time is at hand; I have only a day left; and, if I do not go, he will come and fetch me with his voice. And he will drag me with him, underground, and go on his knees before me, with his death's head. And he will tell me that he loves me! And he will cry: Oh, those tears, Raoul, those tears in the two black eyes-sockets of the death's head! I cannot see those tears flow again!"

She wrung her hands in anguish, while Raoul pressed her to his heart.

"No, no, you shall never again hear him tell you that he loves you! You shall not see his tears! Let us fly, Christine, let us fly at once!"

And he tried to drag her away, then and there. But she stopped her head sadly. "Not now! . . . It would be too cruel. . . . let him hear me sing tomorrow evening. . . . and then he will go away. You must come and fetch me in my dressing-room at midnight exactly. He will then be waiting for me in the dining-room by the lake. . . . we shall be free and you shall take me away."

You must promise me that, Raoul, even if I refuse; for I feel that, if I go back this time, I shall perhaps never return."

And she gave a sigh to which it seemed to her that another sigh, behind her, replied.

"Didn't you hear?"

Her teeth chattered.

"No," said Raoul, "I heard nothing."

"It is too terrible," she confessed, "to be always trembling like this danger here; we are at home, in the sky, in the open air, in the light. The sun is flaming; and night-birds have never seen him by daylight. . . . it must be awful! . . . Oh, the first time I saw him! . . . I thought that he was going to die."

"Why?" asked Raoul, really frightened at the aspect which this strange confidence was taking.

"Because I had seen him!"

"This time, Raoul," and Christine turned round at the same time.

"There is some one in pain," said Raoul. "Perhaps some one has been hurt. Did you hear?"

"I can't say," Christine confessed. "Even when he is not there, my ears are full of his sighs. Still, if you heard . . ."

They stood up and looked around them. They were quite alone on the immense lead roof. They sat down again and Raoul said:

"Tell me how you saw him first."

"I had heard him for three months without seeing him. The first time I heard it, I thought, as you did, that that adorable voice was singing in another room; I went out and looked everywhere; but, as you know, Raoul, my dressing-room is very much by itself; and I could not find the voice outside my room. And it was not only singing, it spoke to me and answered my questions, like a real man's voice, with this difference, that it was as beautiful as the voice of an angel. I had never got the Angel of Music whom your father had promised to send me as soon as he was dead.

I really think that, Madame Valerius was a little bit to blame. I told her about it; and she at once said, 'It must be the angel; at any rate, you can do no harm by asking him.' I did so; and the man's voice replied that, yes, it was the angel's voice, the voice which I was expecting and which my father had promised me. From that time onward, the voice and I became great friends. It asked leave to give me lessons every day. I agreed and never failed to keep the appointment which it gave me in my dressing-room. You have no idea, though you have heard the voice, of what those lessons were like."

"No, I have no idea," said Raoul. "What was your 'accompaniment'?"

Which One Owns This Tree?
For sixty years and more a tree has stood on the dividing line between two properties in Gormantown, Pa. It is a big tree now, and the base of the trunk extends 22 inches on land owned by H. G. Reale and 11 inches on the property of Charles Shoerl. The latter, making improvements, arranged to have the tree cut down, but Mr. Reale has obtained a preliminary injunction, and the case will be threshed out in court.—Hartford Courant.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

PHILADELPHIA.
(By Howard L. Hann.)
Philadelphia is a city whose working day is popularly supposed to be divided into twenty-two hours for labor and refreshment. It was discovered by the late William Penn, who also discovered that the noblest man was eager to give a quit claim deed to the entire state of Pennsylvania in exchange for a plain drunk. During this period William contracted insomnia, due to the offensive familiarity of the Indians, and discovered that Philadelphia was the only place in the state where he could go to sleep without being disturbed by somebody sharpening a tomahawk just outside the bedroom window. The result is that the people who contract for peace and quiet at the same time that they ring for ice water. The only thing Benjamin Franklin ever had against Philadelphia was that it was so noisy he couldn't hear his notes fall down.
Benjamin went to Paris and tried to introduce the Philadelphia brand of after dinner maps and catalectic memos into the Louvre, but with poor success, after which he returned home, became postmaster and hid his yawns behind the stamp window.
Philadelphia has grown very fast since Penn plotted the first Indian burying ground on the Delaware river.
The descendants of these Indians may still be seen doing business in Philadelphia at primary elections, and every once in a while the reform element opens a new burying ground, which is becoming quite densely populated. It is so quiet in Philadelphia on Sunday that a traveling man who dropped his shoes on the floor of his room was arrested for disturbing the peace, and a Fourth of July celebration in that city sounds like a debate in a home for the Deaf and Dumb. It is pleasing to note, however, that whatever Philadelphia lacks in tact and clutter she makes up in brains and bright green currency.

riage of the heroine and hero; does

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville, Gazette, Feb. 7, 1872—
The Stoughton Reporter says: "The slighting has been continuously longer than for the past ten years. We have already had more than sixty days of good sleighing, with the prospect of increasing it to a hundred."
A young lady at Fond du Lac was married without shoes or stockings on the other day, in accordance with an old whim that such an act would bring good luck.
The Light Guard of Milwaukee have secured the services of a number of ladies to act as floor managers on the occasion of their Leap Year party.
The common council of Milwaukee has submitted a proposition of the people to subscribe $75,000, for the purpose of adding the extension of the road from Monroe to Dubuque.

San Francisco—This season the Yosemite tourists will be carried by rail within eighty miles of the valley by either the Mariposa or Courtville route. The horse back ride has been reduced two and one half miles. The fare from San Francisco is twenty-two dollars.
Runaways are so common that we have almost ceased to chronicle their occurrence.
"Knows" bust of "Truth" has been returned from Milwaukee and is now in his studio at the courthouse.
South Main street is the ground for contests between the owners of rival horses.
The dissolution of co-partnership between J. H. & C. B. Conrad has been announced. The latter remains in the

BY WALT MASON
The years roll on, so swift! Old age on us advances, and we into its shadows drift with mournful backward glances. It seems but yesterday that we who falter now and later, were playing on the sunlit land water. The days went by on heavy wing, slow then were life's long stages; for childhood seemed an endless thing of eyes and of ages. 'Twas time to childhood still appears a crippled thing on crutches;
but, childhood past, the busy years throw on the high speed clutches.
Our minds intent on plan or scheme, on triumph or disaster, we do not mark the years that steam by faster and still faster. And then some day the truth comes home—the truth that makes man shiver; the scattered bricks upon his dome, the pluck under his liver, the streaking of his shoulderblades, and many another token, all tell him, while his valor fades, that he is old and broken! It is a thing demanding tears that in our fierce endeavor we do not prize the speedy years until they're gone forever.
